

USTAD HOTEL

A heart warming and honest film. The final message comes out very strongly and is relatable. The best part of film is that it moves so organically throughout and at no point tries to beautify the sentiments or emotions of its characters. It makes you feel as if you almost watching a real life story. I cringed at the starting, hating the poor portrayal of women and the patriarchal attitude of the film but as the story progressed I realized that this is what makes the film so raw and real.
